Kelly Binford Micheletti's practice is dedicated primarily to civil litigation of property subrogation losses in the areas of products liability, construction defects, and general torts. Kelly serves as national counsel on Corrugated Stainless Steel Tubing (CSST) litigation for a national insurance carrier. Currently, Kelly is serving as managing partner of Yost & Baill.

Kelly is an active member of the National Association of Subrogation Professionals (NASP). She has given a number of presentations at national NASP conferences on topics ranging from complex damages in auto subrogation to direct and cross examination tips. Kelly has also served as a conference co-chair for the 2013 NASP Litigation Skills Conference, and authored an article in The Subrogator entitled "Understanding Complex Damages in Auto Subrogation Cases and How to Prove Them." Recently, Kelly was nominated to serve on the Board of Directors of NASP.
